removed. Hayloft floor removed.	red. I/2 of a Shaw	ver truss added from bottom of	wall st	tuds up to center of lower rafter. 2x6 horizontal cross bracing at 16' high. The two added bracing are 8' O. C. 18' x 16' sliding doors added on the South wall.
INTERIOR NOTES: No evidence of posts or beams to support hayloft floor. The hayloft floor joists were 2x8's. Two 1x6 bracing on each rafter hip still in place. A 2x6 brace 4' O. C. from center of lower rafter down to hayloft floor level also still in place.
OTHER NOTES: 2x6 stud walls, 1x6 horizontal car siding and vertical steel roofing on all four walls.
Rafters are 2x6's . Windows are 9" x12"four light. Owner did an excellent job of remodeling a gambrel roof barn into a useable large machinery storage building. The additional bracing is a great engineering idea. I will get permission from the owner to show other farmers how to correctly brace a gambrel roof barn when removing the hayloft floor. I have been trying to explain this way of bracing and this will make the idea a whole lot easier to understand

History of South Dakota

John L. Jolley

John L. Jolley, of Vermillion, has given much thought to public questions and has taken a part in the making of the laws not only of the state but also of the nation. He has served in both houses of the state legislature and was a member of congress, filling out an un-expired term. He is by profession an attorney and has gained high rank at the bar of the state. He was born in Montreal, Canada, July 4, 1840, a son of James and Frances (Lawlor) Jolley, both of whom were natives of Ireland. The father passed away in Hamilton, Ontario, in 1892 and the mother's death occurred in 1850. They were parents of five children as follows: Thomas, who died in infancy; John L.; James, whose death occurred in 1874; Joseph, who passed away in 1863; and Lottie who died in 1869.

John L. Jolley resided in Montreal until he was five years of age and lived in Dominion until he was a youth of seventeen. He attended the district schools of Canada, but when he was twelve years of age put aside his textbooks and began learning the harness making trade, becoming a journeyman when he was only sixteen. After leaving Dominion he went to Wisconsin, where he resided for nine years. While living there the civil War broke and he enlisted in Company C, Twenty-third Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, seeing active service with the Union Army for three years. His ability to command and his gallantry service gained him successive promotion until he became second lieutenant. He saw much hard fighting and took part in the siege of Vicksburg and that of Jackson, Mississippi.

After being discharged from the army Mr. Jolley attended a commercial school in Chicago for thre months, after which he removed to Vermillion, south Dakota, arriving ther on the 10th of July, 1866. He taught school in a log schoolhouse there, which was the first permanent school building in the state, and from July, 1866 until April, 1873, was employed in the United States land office at Vermillion as a clerk. While living in Wisconsin from September, 1858 until October, 1861, he studied law in the office of an attorney at Portage and when, in 1873, the land office was removed from Vermillion he began the practice of his law profession in that city, being for four decades a member of the bar of South Dakota. At intervals Mr. Jolley has been associated with partners, but for a greater part of the time he has practiced alone.

In 1867 and again in 1868 Mr. Jolley was elected to the house of representatives of Dakota Territory; in 1874 was elected to the upper branch of the legislature of the territorial council and was further honored by being made its president. Again, in 1881, he was a member of the council, and after the admission of the state to the Union, he was elected to the state senate, winning re-election in 1890. In 1889 he was a member of the constitutional convention held in Sioux Falls, South Dakota. He was a member of the fifty-second congress, filling out John Gamble's un-expired term. In 1912 he was a candidate for the state senate from Clay County but was defeated.

On the 20th of April, 1874, Mr. Jolley was united in marriage to Miss Harriet J. Grange, who was born upon the homestead near Dubuque, Iowa. Her father was a farmer throughout his active life, but spent his last years in retirement at Vermillion, South Dakota. He died in 1891 and his widow passed away in 1907. To Mr. and Mrs. Jolley have been born the following children: Francis, the wife of C. H. Dillon, of Yankton, this state; and Charles W. and Mary P., twins. The former is a farmer of Clay County and the latter resides at home.

Mr. Jolley is a stanch republican and has been quite prominent in state politics. In addition to the offices mentioned he has held that of mayor of Vermillion, being the first chief executive of the city. He was first elected in 1877 and was again chosen as mayor in 1885. He has also served several terms on the school board. He owns two farms in Clay County, one comprising three hundred and twenty acres and the other two hundred and forty. Both are under cultivation. He wears the bronze button that indicates his membership in the Grand Army of the Republic and for five terms he served as commander of the local post. In 1913 he was elected the department commander of the Grand Army of the Republic of South Dakota. He is popularly known as Colonel, which title was given him when he first began to practice law in Vermillion, where he is well known.
